

Professionals and Moral Responsibility

ROBERT F. COCHRAN, JR.

Louis D. Brandeis Professor of Law
Director, Institute on Law, Religion, and Ethics
Pepperdine University

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28

12:50 TO 1:40 P.M.

HULSTON HALL, ROOM 7

MU SCHOOL OF LAW

Almost all professionals, including medical personnel, clergy, lawyers, psychologists, and corporate executives face a common problem. They come to their work with their own moral values, but they work for other people who may have different moral values. Learning how to address difficult questions should be a significant part of the moral education of anyone who is going to enter a profession. Professor Cochran will discuss these and related issues.

EVERYONE IS INVITED TO ATTEND THIS DISTINGUISHED PUBLIC LECTURE.
